PERSONALITIES

BY JOSEPH KAYE

(New York Special to The Canadian Jewish Review)

In Oklahoma City recently a queer thing happened. A rabbi won a pig. This seems to be a materialization of the several choice rabbi-pig stories which have made us laugh for many generations. In this case, too, there were complications. The pig was won in a lottery held at a picnic given by a local Rotary Club, and it was a very worth-while combination of ham and bacon, weighing 150 pounds. Rabbi Joseph Blatt, the lucky rabbi, of the Temple Bnai Israel, Oklahoma City, took the joke good-humoredly and gave the pig to a Catholic priest, who was also present. But here came the complications; it was Friday. However, as the pig was a live one and could await his master's pleasure, the priest accepted the gift and all was well.

The outstanding joke which this incident brings to mind is as follows: At a banquet at which a priest and a rabbi were present, the priest felt in high good humor and looked about him to indulge in some pleasantries. His eyes alighted on the rabbi. "Good," he thought, while an Irish grin illumined his features, "the very man." Thereupon he took up a plate with a dish made up principally of pork and, turning to the priest, passed the plate to him with the remark: "When my dear rabbi, shall I have the pleasure of seeing you partake of this tasty dish?" An equally broad smile appeared on the rabbi's lips as he moved the plate aside and replied: "When I shall have the honor of attending your wedding."

In various forms this anecdote has been going the rounds and not long ago we came across it in an entirely new guise. This time the principals were Israel Zangwill and a loon who slighted him at a banquet. But our memory fails us in details of the story, so unless some kind follower obliges with information you will have to be deprived of a laugh.

If we had a mind for technical matters we would describe to you the workings of our local Brooklyn Federation of Charities. Its executive director, Max Abelman, is a student of efficiency. His office is organized on lines dear to the heart of a noted school in Scranton, and he takes pride in the fact that he can lay his finger on any detail connected with the institution in an instant.

This is commendable. Few Jewish charitable institutions possess such a virtue, and as a reward, we will place on this record two members of the Brooklyn Federation. These men are Walter N. Rothschild and Benjamin Harrison Namm. Both are business rivals. Mr. Rothschild is treasurer of one of New York's largest department stores, Abraham and Straus, and Mr. Namm is president of Namm's, another large store and almost neighbor to the other concern.

Both Mr. Rothschild and Mr. Namm are very active in the Brooklyn Federations, the former being its present secretary.

Mr. Namm is a popular employer. He has a pleasing personality and enthusiastic temperament, and preserves enjoyable harmony among the employees of the big store.

Mr. Namm comes of a prominent family and has been active in the store since his youth, though he is only in his thirties now. After receiving a gentleman's son's education, he went to work in the store and learned the business in approved American democratic style. The war caused an interruption. He went to France, saw service and was gassed; then he resumed selling everything from buttons to pianos and gave his spare time to the community. He has been president of the Brooklyn Federation of Charities for three terms and has served with the Red Cross, the Salvation Army and Boy Scouts. His influence has been especially felt in Jewish charities and war work. Now he is enjoying the fruits accorded to a man of his virtues. He was married recently to Miss Margaret Wolf, of New York, and the couple are now honeymooning in Europe.

Mr. Rothschild is the son-in-law of Felix Warburg, the banker and chief of the Joint Distribution Committee, so it comes natural that he should engage in charitable work. He is a graduate of Princeton University, and a serious thinker. He has the admiration and respect of all the workers at Abraham and Straus', which is a remarkable business, both from the point of view of size and scope. It is the one store to which the aristocracy of Brooklyn, the remnants of the old Brooklyn regime of gentility, of the days before its mansions became converted into three-family apartment houses for our brethren, still cling faithfully. And to keep the same custom through generations is a proud record. Mr. Rothschild's slate, as written by his friends, give him this portrait: Kind, genial, charming personality, a philosopher, witty and possessing high ideals; works hard and plays well; considerate of his employees and mindful of their advancement; an executive of power and foresight; philanthropic, and a valuable citizen and member of his community.

Besides Abraham and Straus', Mr. Rothschild is a member of the Board of Trustees of the Title Guarantee and Trust Co.

During the war he was a lieutenant in the navy. He is married and has two children, and all he has accomplished was done in just thirty years.

Here is a lengthy story regarding Eddie Cantor. His friends in the "profesh" gave him a banquet recently to show what they thought of him, and we are so much in accord with their sentiments that we are going to deprive you of the reading of our own entertaining paragraphs and substitute the following interesting description of the Cantor event, reprinted from "Variety":

The Friars and their guests attended the testimonial dinner given by that organization to Eddie Cantor, at the Monastery.

Will Rogers, as a dramatic actor, followed the usual round of tributes to Eddie Cantor's ability, charity and good-fellowship. His sacrifices for the Friars, his generosity in the matter of benefit performances even to the extent of sacrificing remunerative Sunday concerts at the Winter Garden—these and other instances were outlined by the various speakers.

Then, in his capacity as toastmaster, Rogers got up and said, as far as he was concerned, these instances of charity and the like were all nothing compared to a revealing incident he had experienced when Cantor and he were playing in the "Follies" together.

Cantor, it seems, was brought up by an aged Jewish grandmother, who did everything to help him along in his chosen profession. While he was still not very well known to New York theatre-goers, the old lady took sick and Cantor sent her to a sanitarium, where she received every possible care that the comedian's meager resources would permit.

And then, just at the time when Cantor was a big hit, when he was gaining the recognition and the money that would have meant that he could really begin to repay what the grandmother did for him, the old lady died. With a strange change in his voice, Rogers told how he walked into their common dressing room at the New Amsterdam one day and found Cantor alone in a corner weeping like a baby. "And that's what makes Eddie a regular fellow to me," said Rogers. "Anybody can give a little money away, or give benefit performances, but when a fellow can feel so grateful to an old lady and bawl like a kid because she has not lived to see [illegible]

Dr. Hertz Celebrates His Fiftieth Year—Discovery of a Lost Picture—Treasures of Palestine—British and French Protect Jews—Rejected Immigration into Palestine — Unsettled Conditions in Jaffa—Colonel Wedgwood's Visit to America—Note on Atonement Robes—Distress of Jews in Eastern Europe.

London, Sept. 30, 1922.

On Monday last the Chief Rabbi, Dr. Hertz, celebrated his fiftieth year. It appears that he has received congratulations from both far and near. It is some ten years ago since Dr. Hertz became the occupant of the high office he now fills. The post was rendered vacant by the death of Dr. Hermann Adler. He has in many ways fully justified the choice that was made when the post was rendered vacant. But out of these ten years unfortunately we have to account for years of war when the sterile influence of a country under arms was over everything, and the Chief Rabbinate suffered not the least. The "Jewish World" says: "Indeed, out of the decade during which Dr. Hertz has been spiritual chief of this country, seven years at least have to be deducted in estimating the effect of his activities as Chief Rabbi. For during those seven years the soil was terribly barren and even the richest spiritual seed proved deplorably infertile. Mazal tob!"

Some interesting specimens of art are always coming to hand amongst the job lots which are sold at country auctions in this country every day. The latest item of this description is a picture called "Kol Nidre Night," by a non-Jewish Polish painter called Scryesky. The picture has been lost sight of for nearly fifty years and was discovered by Mr. R. Katz, of Hampstead, at a sale in Sussex of a clergyman's effects. The artist, besides this, had painted two other pictures, one entitled "The Converted Jewess," and the other "The Jewish Wedding."

Two articles of great interest appear in the London "Times," sent by a special correspondent, entitled "Treasures of Palestine," and describing excavations by the Americans at Beisan and by our own Palestine Exploration Fund at Ascalon, where the work has had to be interrupted for want of funds. The project for opening up the site of the ancient city of Jerusalem known as the City of David, is of peculiar interest, surpassing that of similar operations at Troy, etc. The area to be investigated lies just outside the existing walls of Jerusalem, immediately to the south, but within the compass of the older walls, including practically the whole of the stronghold of the Jebusites, who were there before David; and the palace of David, for the construction of which Hiram, King of Tyre, sent cedar trees with skilled woodmen, and including probably also tombs of later date. The journal quoted says the entire civilized world will watch these excavations with attention, and the discoveries will be carefully safeguarded, the uncovered site being retained as a historical feature of Jerusalem; and it records the satisfaction that must be enjoyed by the citizens of Great Britain that such work should now be engaged in in the Holy Land, as this country has had a long and honorable connection with Palestine exploration.

Interesting correspondence from Constantinople shows that British warships in the Sea of Marmora are undertaking the protection of the Jews from hostile action by the Greeks, and the services of French soldiers are also appreciated in preventing the destruction of the Jewish quarter of Brousa by the retiring Greek Army.

The problem of repeopling Palestine with Jews and the difficulties put in the way form the subject of a complaint by the "Zionist Review," which says that "it is idle to ignore the fact that under the present regulations and their administration there is practically a ban on Jewish immigration into Palestine. When we find that in the month of July the grand total of immigrants was 349, of whom 219 were wives, children and other persons wholly dependent on residents in Palestine, we cannot but admit that under such conditions, the worst that is said about the desire in certain quarters to exclude Jews from the Jewish national home is not without substantial justification. Admitting the need for some control, the journal holds that the limitations in force can apparently be turned into a system whereby one of the most difficult things for a Jew may be to enter Erez Israel. We have hitherto consistently refrained from criticizing a procedure which will turn the whole idea of a Jewish national home into a mockery among the many thousands of capable men and women who passionately long to enter their ancestral land and earn their living by the sweat of the brow, indifferent to the necessarily inherent difficulties of the situation. We had hoped for better things from a visit of the High Commissioner to London."

On the other hand, quotations from the letter of an American lady residing in Jaffa, published in the "Daily Telegraph," on the unsettled condition of the land of Israel, call the situation very alarming, and there is a great outcry because the English police do not try to capture the murderers of a number of Jews. The Jews are dreading further attacks and, owing to the apathy of the government, have been forced to take measures for their own protection.

Considerable interest attaches to the visit of Colonel Wedgwood, M.P., to the United States. He has been entertained by the Keren Hayesod at a luncheon on the eve of his departure, when in the presence of many eminent guests a message from Dr. Weizmann in Paris was read, wishing Colonel and Mrs. Wedgwood a cordial godspeed as the foremost among English statesmen advocating publicly and in the House of Commons Lord Balfour's policy for the re-establishment of the Jewish national home in Palestine. Colonel Wedgwood replied that he was going out at the invitation of the Jewish labor party in America and was acting conformably with the resolutions repeated at congress after congress of the British Labor Party. The British Labor Party was in this movement because it had seen the results of centuries of oppression of the Jews throughout the world, which had created a spirit of intolerance and caste barriers which made the whole work of labor more difficult. It hoped to see the status of the Jew in the world changed when the race had an address on the map. They had to create racial pride in order to generate that international spirit which they hoped to see submerging all narrow racial prejudices. Mr. C. J. L. Malone, M.P., in support of Colonel Wedgewood, said he regarded the Jewish national home as one of the very few ideals which had survived the peace treaty of Versailles. He gladly added his voice to those who expressed their good wishes for the success of his mission.

A very striking note appears in the "Jewish Guardian" by "Himjel" on "Atonement Robes." We read, he says, in Yoma III that in the morning the High Priest was clad in Pelusian (Egyptian) linen. In the afternoon he changed his robes and put on Hinduin, or Indian, linen. Indian linen is remarkable for the delicacy of its texture. Indian muslins and linens were called "wind-woven." No doubt it was because of the fineness of their weaving and the softness of their fabric that they were chosen for the canonicals of the High Priest, for he had a heavy physical task to perform, and in view of the crowds and the heat, and the fact that he was fasting, no doubt it was essential to choose the most delicate material that could be obtained.

Lionel de Rothschild and L. de Yong Waedens, of the Great Synagog, London, make a special appeal on behalf of the Jews in East Europe, "whose only hope of life depends on any assistance that can be sent them. Famine and disease have overtaken whole Jewish communities in Eastern Europe, and in some towns 85 out of every 100 have died. . . . All ought to help in this great cause. . . . We are confident that on the occasion of these high festivals every one of our members will give something further to the fund. Thousands of homeless and helpless widows and orphans are crying out to us. Soon it may be too late to save them."

The appalling plight of the Jews in Smyrna is becoming ever more evident, from reliable reports. Jewish leaders of Smyrna have sent out appeals to the world to come to the aid of those who have been ruined by the reign of terror. Some of the people are so terrified that they hurl themselves from windows and become raving mad at the sight of the charred remains of their children. The Jewish Joint Distribution Committee announces a contribution of $10,000 for relief of the refugees.

The remarkable baking powers of the "Composite" are largely due to its oven construction. When directed for baking, the heat is blocked at the top of the oven back flue, producing a pocket of intense heat. Entering the bottom flues, the heat passes to the front, divides right and left, circulates in side flues, rises to top, and, after top circulation, escapes through vent above damper plate. The heat not only travels on five sides of the oven, but confined in the side and back pockets, will give abundant baking heat with the minimum amount of fuel.

A Question of Miggles

Concluded from last week

The fish woman wheeled about so sharply that Charlie instinctively drew back. She leveled a keen gray glance at him, her red lips contracting somewhat, and asked:

"Whaddaya want?"

A curl of cunning suddenly appeared in the woman's face and a vengeance gleamed in her eyes. "Take it," she snapped.

Charlie's heart leaped with joy. He bounded up to the box, seized it in business-like fashion, as if to show that this was not the first fish box he was handling, and made a motion as though to roll it over.

But the box did not budge an inch and Charlie looked up with mingled shame and amazement. He was fooled. The box was full of fish and yet unopened. His face flaming with mortification, the taunting voice of the fish woman in his ears, Charlie turned away and continued his search.

For some time after this he either did not happen to come across an empty box or it appeared to him that every box was full, like the one he had just attempted to move. He paused at last before the spectacle of six boxes which were unmistakably open and empty.

This time the owner was a stout little woman in a green jacket, who walked up and down the aisle in front of her cart, rubbing her hands and shouting so shrilly that Charlie paused to wonder how she could keep it up so long. But no sooner did she catch sight of our little hero than she pointed a threatening finger at him and screamed: "Don't you dare touch one of these boxes!"

Charlie's face flushed. "Who wants your old boxes?" he muttered through his clenched teeth, and turning his face away from the boxes, which seemed to him to be trying to stare him out of countenance, he walked on.

The conviction was swiftly growing in Charlie that his luck had deserted him completely. But he had proceeded only a little way up the aisle when again he espied a box, an open one, the size of which made him gasp. "To get such a box is as good as getting ten others," was the thought which flashed through his mind.

This time to his relief, he had to deal with a fish man, a stout, florid-faced, little man, who was surrounded by a host of customers. "He is making big sales and must therefore be in good humor," thought Charlie. He stood aside confidently and waited more than ten minutes for the crowd to disperse. But the fish man had no sooner perceived him than he shook his head vigorously and said:

"What do you want? A box? I'll give you a box—on the ear!"

Charlie paled and turned away just in time to see Bones hurrying by and pulling two big boxes after him. "Now I know why I got hard luck," Charlie muttered to himself; "it's my fault for having quarreled with him!"

A few minutes more did Charlie search in vain. Wherever he came the boxes were either half-filled or they were owned by some stingy fish man or fish woman who would not part with them. Suddenly, to his supreme relief, he perceived Micky speeding toward him. "What luck, Mick?" he asked.

"Four boxes!" sputtered Micky breathlessly, counting the number on his fingers twice.

Overjoyed, Charlie followed Micky to the Pitt Street end of the market, where, sure enough, lay four large boxes, the sight of which made him tingle with delight. "Where did you get them, Mick?" he asked, looking them over with shining eyes.

"I took them," answered Micky abruptly, and seizing two boxes began pulling them into the gutter.

Charlie seized the other two and followed Micky. The boxes were soon deposited in Charlie's cellar and Charlie ran up to tell his mother of his singular fortune of that day.

Charlie was lording over his supper that night when Mrs. Schwartz, the mother of Bones, came in. "Just think of my poor Jakie's luck," she said to his mother mournfully. "He went to the market for boxes, worked himself to death, and after he did get four boxes someone stole them from him!"

"My Charlie had better luck," said Mrs. Walinsky proudly. "He brought home four boxes."

"Poor Jake," continued Mrs. Schwartz in a new wail. "He hasn't even the heart to eat these days. He's so pale I'm afraid he'll become sick."

The morsel Charlie was just in the act of putting into his mouth dropped back on his plate. His face paled perceptibly. Without giving any excuse whatever, he suddenly left the room and permitted the banister to carry him downstairs in a flash.

Bones was stretched out under the shed as usual. As Charlie approached him he thought he had never before seen Bones in so pitiable a plight. His heart waxed heavy and he wondered whether he was not himself responsible for some of the sadness that was brooding in the soul of Bones.

It was already dark and Charlie could see Bones but dimly through the heavy shadow of the mill. For a whole second he hesitated whether he should be the first to speak, then he moved forward with a sudden impulse and sat down at Bones' side.

Bones straightened up with a start, and stared at Charlie as though he did not understand how his former partner happened to be there. Then he began slowly to move away.

"Wait a minute, Bones," Charlie called in a voice which had grown husky in spite of his efforts to repress an open show of sentimentality.

"What do you want?"

"I want you to tell me about those boxes, Bones."

Bones related how he had pulled together four boxes at the Pitt Street end of the market, and having gone in search of more he returned to find that someone had stolen them.

"Do you know who it was?" asked Charlie, rolling up his sleeves.

Bones shook his head.

Charlie made a gesture of impatience. But that moment he perceived Micky passing on the other side of the gutter and a new suspicion crossed his mind. Perhaps the boxes he had got—he knew Micky was too lazy ever to get anything by his own efforts. He bounded across the street and seized Micky by the shoulder. "Now listen to me, Mick," he said, looking into the rolling blue eyes of the little Irish kid significantly. "Them was Bones' boxes we took home!"

Micky was so overwhelmed by the suddenness of the accusation that he had not the time to invent a lie. He stared back at Charlie, but did not say a word.

Charlie did not wait for an answer. He bounded back to the side of the disconsolate Bones. "I've got your boxes, Bones!" he fairly shouted, and seizing one of the thin hands in his own he pulled him toward the cellar, where a flickering match revealed to Bones the joyful spectacle of his own boxes reclining safely in Charlie's cellar.

"We'll put them back into your cellar to-morrow morning," said Charlie. "And now, are you satisfied?"

Bones' eyes glistened. "And what about the miggles?" he asked.

"Come on up my house," Charlie answered gaily. "I've got some more that I want you to keep for me. But mind that you don't let your mother find them this time, y'understan'?"

Poale Zion Convention

A very successful convention took place during the last week. The convention featured a representative British Member of Parliament, Col. Wedgwood, D.S.O., vice-president of the British Labor Party, who brought greetings to American Poale Zionists from the British Labor Party.

Col. Wedgwood spoke at the opening meeting held Wednesday at the Men of England Hall, to a large gathering of Zionist friends and supporters, and took part also in the deliberations of the convention. On all occasions the guest gave fervent assurance of his own loyalty and support, and that of the Party he represented in the rejuvenation and revival of the Jewish people. At one of the sessions of the convention Col. Wedgewood accepted membership in the Poale Zion party. The session was marked by enthusiasm and a sense of historic importance.

Col. Wedgwood will remain in America to carry on campaigns and propaganda in the interests of the Keren Hayesod. The convention reasserted its determination to carry on with undiminted energy its task of establishing a Jewish Palestine, based upon productiveness and self-control of a co-operative Jewish commonwealth. It also determined the re-establishment of the party organ, the "Zeit," of which publication was recently discontinued. It declared its determination to continue the effective weapon of a daily press in order to arouse the consciousness of American Jewry in the task of national re-establishment. An important event of the convention's activities was its deliberations on the party's recent affiliation with the American Labor Party.

The Poale Zionists have been granted separate recognition in the new alignment of American progressive forces. The convention decided to carry forward its work in this direction, and thus secure for itself and for the ideals represented, an effective place in American political life.

Encouraging reports were received of the campaign of the Palestine Workers Bank, and plans were adopted for the furtherance of these activities.

Telegrams were received from the united Labor organizations of Palestine, and proper responses forwarded by the convention.

The convention closed with a well-attended meeting at Loew's Theatre, where rousing addresses were delivered by B. Zuckerman, manager of the People's Relief Committee, I. Hemlin, general secretary of the Party, L. Brown, Labor candidate to the New York Assembly, and S. Bontchick, secretary of the Palestine Workers' Fund.

The delegates were entertained at a ball and banquet. The convention arrangements were effectively carried out under the chairmanship of Mr. L. Colduff.

ZIONIST FEDERATION EXECUTIVE HONORS COLONEL WEDGWOOD

The Ontario Division of the Canadian Zionist Federation executive gave a luncheon at the Prince George Hotel, Friday, October 13, in honor of its distinguished guest, Col. Josiah Wedgwood, D.S.O., Labor member of British House of Commons, who was here to attend the fourteenth annual convention of the American Socialist Zionist Party. Col. Wedgwood stands second to Lord Balfour in his services to the restoration of Palestine as a Jewish homeland, according to many Zionists. At the close of the luncheon, Col. Wedgwood gave a short address in which he said: "It is to the interests of the Jews and English to be friends. Jews are fighters for social and political freedom. Zionism in England is not a live factor. It is not understood by the masses, but there is now a realization that Palestine must be Judaized [illegible]. Jews must have a national [illegible] they can have a national respect. They must hold up their heads and say they are Jews two thousand years after Christ." Col. Wedgwood and guests drank to the restoration of Palestine as a Jewish homeland.

Dr. N. Syrkin, of New York, who was a delegate to the convention, spoke impressively.

MRS. WEDGWOOD PRAISES HADASSAH

Mrs. Josiah Wedgwood, wife of Col. Josiah Wedgwood, Labor member of the British House of Commons and vice-president of the British Labor Party, who was here attending the fourteenth annual convention of the Jewish Socialist Labor Party, told the CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW that, "Jewish women do not need to wait for new inspiration and enthusiasm to know what to do when they have such excellent work to carry on as Hadassah. What they have already accomplished in the work is of the greatest value and importance to the up-building of the Jewish homeland and relief of the Eastern situation."

When questioned as to Col. Wedgwood's interest in Palestine, Mrs. Wedgwood said, "Col. Wedgwood's interest in the movement first became aroused when he visited Palestine during the war, to make friends for the Allies and to encourage immigration to Palestine, so as to have a buffer state between Turkey and British possessions in Africa."

Mrs. Wedgwood told of her frequent visits with Col. Wedgwood to the homes of Dr. Weizman and Mrs. Joseph Fels, who are advocates of the single tax, in which the Colonel is also interested.

NAOMI GIRLS

The Naomi Girls of the Y.W.H.A. are holding a miscellaneous clothing shower in aid of the Jewish orphans, Sunday, October 22, 3 p.m., at the home of Mrs. Kaufman, 278 Crawford Street.

MONTEFIORE GIRLS' DANCE

Dear friends, please listen, we want to tell you this:
That Tuesday, October 24, is
The date of the Montefiore Girls' dance.
We cordially invite you to attend.
And let us assure you there you will spend
A very pleasant evening with many a friend,
'Midst music, dancing, entertainment
for all.
We'll be delighted to see you at the Metropolitan Assembly Hall.

DAUGHTERS OF ISRAEL SOCIETY

At the first fall season meeting of the Daughters of Israel Society, in the Royal Templars' auditorium, Mrs. Joshua Smith delivered an address on, "The Jewish Problem." A number of new members enrolled, and a large collection of dues was reported. Mrs. Jessie Forman, chairlady of the relief committee, reported that members who were on the sick list are all well and presented themselves at the meeting.

Nearly fifty dollars were distributed to immediate distressed within the last month.

Mrs. Esther Wilson, chairman of theater benefit committee, reported that "Hamlet" will be played on November 14, at the new Standard Theater, Spadina Avenue, for the benefit of this society and that the tickets are selling successfully. A contest among the ladies to sell the most tickets is in progress.

At an exhibition of church ornaments, now being held at Stuttgart, a large section is devoted to Jewish art and culture. The chief rabbi of Stuttgart, Dr. Rieger, has spared no pains in interesting eminent Jewish artists in the exhibition. There are included some excellent works in metal from the Mendelsohn workshops at Helleran, and a Menorah from Zadikow (Berlin). Frederic Adler, of Hamburg, shows his well-known Kiddush goblet, as well as some stained-glass work, representing the Twelve Tribes. From Breslau, Professor Grotte has sent three iron Chanukah candelabra, and Hermann Kahn and Hermann Fechenbach, of Stuttgart, exhibited two pieces—a Misrach leaf, and "the Talmud Scholar." Two very old Torah shields are also shown, one of which was presented to the Stuttgart congregation by Berthold Auerbach in 1778. A number of lectures on synagogal art have been delivered by Professor Grotte and others.

SUPPOSE NOBODY CARED!

THE Toronto Federation of Community Service is out to raise $500,000.00 for fifty-one local institutions which care for the sick, aged, orphaned, and helpless. During the few years of its existence, it has amply demonstrated its worth, even to most pronounced skeptics. The Federation has relieved the directors of the fifty-one institutions affiliated with it of the worries of raising money, which formerly consumed 90 per cent. of the directors' time, leaving them little or no energy to give to the actual, efficient expenditures of the monies received, as well as to the administration of their institutions.

Under the present system, the Community Federation, in a short campaign, manages to do away with the excessive overhead expense of running fifty-one individual campaigns, by raising in a few days at no cost to the subscribers, the money needed for the support of the fifty-one charitable institutions of the city.

The campaign expenses are raised from a small group of men, who wish that every penny collected shall go to the support of the needy. This is all very well. But we are amazed that Toronto, the twelfth largest city on this continent, should be content with less than a dollar a head for its entire population. The per capita for charity is lower than that of many other cities of the same size, or even smaller.

In this respect, the Jewish community of Toronto lead their non-Jewish neighbors. The Jewish population of this city numbers about 35,000. Yet our Federation of Jewish Philanthropies, which includes only ten of the many Jewish charitable institutions and societies, raises a budget of over $60,000.00 per year. This is almost two dollars per capita, or twice as much as do their non-Jewish friends.

This is one reason why the Jewish Federation is not a member of the Community Federation. Being only six per cent. of the city's population, we would be entitled to only six per cent. of the total subscriptions of the Community Federation. This would amount to only $30,000.00, which would be insufficient for our Jewish philanthropic needs, and put our charities on the "ration" basis. Whereas, through the generosity of our people, we are able to raise a budget double that which we could justly claim from the Community Federation.

The Jews have always taken care of their own poor. They intend, with increasing generosity, to live up to that glorious tradition.

Nevertheless, charity should know no barriers of race, creed, or color. We appeal to the Jewish inhabitants of this city not to remain content with merely doing their duty by their own poor, but also to contribute as liberally as their means and income will allow, to the needy and helpless among our neighbors. Let us stretch out the hand of helpfulness to all who require aid. May sweet charity be the bond uniting Jew and non-Jew in brotherly love and harmony.

REUBEN BRAININ

LOVERS of Hebrew everywhere will be delighted with the news that the sixtieth birthday of Reuben Brainin, the dean of Hebrew letters, will be celebrated on Sunday evening, October 22, at Carnegie Hall, New York.

Reuben Brainin is among "the last of the Mohicans" of that group of pioneers and creators, who fashioned a new Hebrew out of a language, which formerly was used almost exclusively by rabbis in religious disputations with one another or in writing ritual and legal responsa. Reuben Brainin was among that small coterie of leaders of the modern movement of Jewish "Enlightenment" who secularized Hebrew, and made it an adequate instrument for belle-lettres and the expression of modern thought. In this sense, it can be said that he was one of those who converted "a dead language" into a living reality.

In the forty-two years of his literary activities, Brainin has written belle-lettres, essays, reviews, monographs. Like his departed colleague, Frischman, he made translations of the world's classics into Hebrew, and edited a number of Hebrew periodicals. He is the present editor of the "Hatoren," a Hebrew monthly of a high literary order. Brainin has contributed to practically every Jewish newspaper and magazine. He writes with equal fluency in Hebrew, Yiddish and German. His style is unique, clear and terse, and serves as a model to the younger Hebrew writers. Brainin's Hebrew diction is such that not only the younger generation, reared in modern Hebrew, can read it, but also the older generation, brought up on the Talmud and Rabbinic literature, appreciate it. His Hebrew is the bridge on which old Israel and young Israel meet.

Brainin has made a mark in every branch of Hebrew literature. But Biography is his field of highest achievement. His biographical sketches will remain classics in modern Hebrew literature. His grasp of modern culture, his penetrating view of life, and his insight into the soul of the Jew, make him an ideal interpreter of the great Jewish personalities about whom he has written. His "Life of Dr. Theodor Herzl" is undoubtedly the best example of biographic literature in any language.

Brainin is not merely a Hebrew literateur, who is content to serve his people with his masterful pen. Brainin has a "communal soul." Nothing that is Jewish is foreign to him. He has for forty years taken an active part in Zionistic and Jewish communal affairs. His saneness of outlook and fine knowledge of the life of both Eastern and Western Jewry, give authority to his views, so that he is listened to with much respect.

Reuben Brainin is still in the prime of life. Nature has been kind to him, and his sixtieth birthday finds him hale and hearty. Ripened by his wide range of experience, Brainin should serve the many causes he loves so well for years to come.

To Canadian Jewry, Brainin's sixtieth anniversary is a significant event. For a number of years he edited a newspaper in Montreal. His presence with us in Canada at a time when the masses of Canadian Jewry were finding themselves, was most helpful. He exerted a constructive influence on matters literary, Zionistic and communal. It would therefore be most fitting that we should seize this opportunity to show Reuben Brainin how grateful we are to him for his manifold services, as well as to celebrate "the coming to maturity" of a great Hebrew writer. Committees of Zionists, Hebraists, and communal workers should be organized in Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Hamilton, London, Winnipeg, and other Canadian cities, to bring Brainin into our midst, and to celebrate with him, not merely a birthday anniversary, but also the realization of many of his and our highest ideals.

We are building two things—a building and a service

The handling of family wash by the "semi-finished" method is a service that has been as carefully built as the new structure we are erecting at the corner of Ossington avenue and Halton street. We have an ideal or objective towards which we are striving daily and our customers will tell you how satisfying to them are the results of this pride in doing our work well. Modern chemistry has produced methods of softening water and modern mechanics the means of thoroughly cleansing your wash separately with the purest of soaps, without wear and tear. Possibly, the best feature is the low cost of "semi-finished." If you are unacquainted with "semi-finished," phone us.

Community Theatre Night

Arrangements have been completed by the Bnai Brith for a special production of "Disraeli" by the Vaughan-Glaser Players at Loew's Uptown Theater, on Monday evening, November 27. The entire proceeds realized from this affair will be divided equally between the Foundation Fund of the Free Loan Society and the Emergency Fund of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies. The Free Loan Society was founded by the Bnai Brith Lodge and the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies.

Everyone still remembers the beautiful theater night given last year under the auspices of the Rose Chapter of Hadassah, of which Mrs. D. Dunkelman was president. That affair was one of the greatest ever given in any community. It is promised that this affair will even surpass any affair given heretofore in the city of Toronto.

An effort is being made to bring here, either Mr. Julius Rosenwald, and Judge Mack or Mr. Louis Marshall and Mr. Billikopf, to address the Jewish community on this occasion.

The worthiness of the two institutions for which this affair is given speaks for itself.

Toronto has long needed a Free Loan Society (Gemileth Chasodim).

The Federation is expecting a very [illegible], and it will be unable to [illegible] all cases of poverty unless [illegible] emergency fund is raised.

It is therefore the duty of everyone to be present at this great community theater night, and to give his full moral and financial support.

The following committee of ladies are in charge of the sale of tickets: Honorary convener, Mrs. D. Dunkelman; convener, Mrs. N. Phillips; secretary, Mrs. H. Solway; and Mesdames L. M. Schwartz, I. Scheuer, P. Hermant, S. Simonski, L. Freifeld, H. Rosenthal, M. Mehr, J. Selick, M. S. Till, J. Singer, M. Friedman, and the Misses R. Jacobs and M. Livingston, and others whose names will be announced next week.

In reporting to Herbert Hoover, chairman of the American Relief Administration, on the progress of the famine relief work in the Ukraine up to July 31, Colonel William R. Grove, American Relief Administration District Supervisor, makes plain that much of the credit for checking the famine in that region belongs to the Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, who financed the operations.

When the school management committee voted to bar publicity in the matter of strappings given in the schools, Chairman Berlis had the temerity to say that he objected to corporal punishment. Of interest to the strappers and also to the strappees in the schools, would be a letter from a professor at the Theological College at Indore, India, to Rev. A. Armstrong, of the Presbyterian Foreign Mission Board, in which he says of India: "The repressive measures adopted by the government do not seem to have accomplished much." Strappings are repressive measures. Do they accomplish anything, really?

The House of Deputies and the House of Bishops of the Episcopal Church have been thinking of the Jews all this time that we so selfishly have failed to give them a thought of any sort. In solemn session assembled in the city of Portland, Oregon, they have voted to remove the name of Jews from the infidel class. One of their prayers, which used to read: "Have mercy on all Jews, Turks, infidels and heretics," is no more. The new prayer reads: "Have mercy on all who know Thee not." These good churchmen meant to do us a favor by extending to us the hand of Episcopalian fellowship, in a spirit of what they call Christian charity. Instead, they have stopped asking mercy for the Jews, and we need it just as much as Turks, infidels and heretics or Episcopalians. Perhaps the Baptists or Methodists will have a convention soon and pray for us by name, so there will be no miscarriage of mercy. It would be foolish for us to depend on one sect only.

Bnai Brith Hears Henry Morgenthau

Over three hundred members and their friends heard Mr. Henry Morgenthau on Monday evening, October 16, at a meeting of the Bnai Brith lodge. The president, Nathan Phillips, introduced the speaker as one of the three men whom the I.O.B.B. had honored with a gold medal.

"Everywhere I travelled, I found Bnai Brith lodges with a welcome for me," said the speaker. "At Cairo, they were present with flowers and candies for my wife and daughter. Unknowingly, I threw a bomb-shell into their midst in Cairo. There are two I.O.B.B. lodges there and apparently they are not too friendly. As I had little time at my disposal, I suggested that they meet jointly to hear my address. After consultation, they decided to meet. I have never witnessed a finer meeting anywhere. I later found out that this was the beginning of better relations between the two lodges. In Jerusalem, I also found a lodge with members wearing red fezzes, all representatives of various countries."

Mr. Morgenthau went on to describe the suffering in Europe amongst the Jews.

"Conditions in Europe," he stated, "are harder for the Jews than ever before. There are thousands without an opportunity to make a living. In one town I found some five thousand people, mostly Jews, who made a living out of wood. The various processes of cutting and manufacturing and selling were handled by these people. Now they are destitute as this industry is no more. They cannot come back to normal till business relations with Russia are restored. They are in a terrible state out there and are almost at their wits' end.

"Regarding the trouble in the East, I must say that Great Britain rendered the greatest service to mankind by her action there. It is astonishing to see how things are conducted everywhere where the British are concerned.

"The Turks will not punish one of their own who has done harm to Jew or Christian. I believe it is now my business to tell the world what I know about the Turks. The masses were decent people, but once they were incited by the leaders, they took fiendish delight in massacreing."

Mr. Morgenthau then related a case where American teachers were maltreated by a band of Turks. Extreme measures and torture had to be used before they could make the guilty ones admit their wrong. He expressed the opinion that the Turks should be relegated to Anatolia, for if they had an opportunity, they would advance to Greece and then to Mesopotamia. He insisted that America should co-operate with Great Britain in controlling the activities of the Turks.

Mr. Edmund Scheuer in a very eloquent speech, moved a vote of thanks to the eminent speaker.

CONGREGATIONAL

HOLY BLOSSOM HEBREW CONGREGATION, BOND STREET

The regular Sabbath morning service, with choir and sermon, will be held on Saturday morning, October 21, at 10.15. The subject of Rabbi Brickner's sermon will be "Creation."

Religious School

An error crept into our last week's notice. The Religious School will be open on Sunday, October 22, at 10.00 a.m. All the former pupils are requested to be on hand to register. New pupils will also be welcome. Members of the Congregation whose children have not joined our Sabbath school, should make a special effort to register their children next Sunday because of the limited number of new pupils the school can accommodate. Every effort, however, will be made to enroll children of members.

CONGREGATION GOEL TZEDEK, UNIVERSITY AVENUE SYNAGOG

Saturday, October 21, the services for the dedication of the New Month will be held. Rabbi Siegel will speak on the section of the week. His topic will be, "The Conqueror of the World."

Opening of Sunday School

Sunday, October 22, will mark the opening date of the Sunday school for the 1922-1923 season. All children who have not registered heretofore can register on that day in the office of the synagog.

Y.P.L. Opening Meeting

The opening meeting of the Y.P.L., which was to be held on Sunday, October 22, has been postponed to Sunday, October 29. Members will receive notices of this meeting and information regarding the program which the executive is preparing. Young people interested in the Y.P.L. will be welcome at this meeting.

---

All presidents, in whose synagogs donations have been made to the Jewish Immigrant Aid Society of Canada, are asked to kindly forward same to the office of the society at 206 Beverley Street.

Mrs. Nathan Glassman, and daughter, Euclid Apartments, are leaving Saturday for an extended trip to New York, where they will visit relatives and friends.

A pretty variety shower was given by Misses Irene Valekoff and Edith Hershorn, in honor of Miss Mary Gaffe, a bride of this month.

Mrs. S. Besvenick and Miss Henrietta Cross were joint hostesses at a very successful miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Anna Brown, a bride of this month.

Miss Reba Corb was entertained at a surprise party, Saturday, at her home, in honor of her sixteenth birthday. There were forty present. Miss Doris Swartz was in charge of the arrangements.

A very pretty linen shower was given by Belle Gaffe in honor of her sister, Mary, a bride of this month, who was the recipient of many beautiful gifts

Miss Donna Geller, of Windsor, is spending a week in the city en route for California.

An enjoyable evening was spent by members of the Dr. Weitzman Zion Club, when Miss Jennie Felderman, Queen Street East, entertained Sunday last.

TEMPLE SISTERHOOD OPENS SEASON WITH PURE FOOD SALE

Due to the active interest of Mrs. B. R. Brickner, president of the Temple Sisterhood of Holy Blossom Congregation, Miss Clara Kailmeyer, the entertainment committee and the very able convenorship of Mrs. J. Heim, the harvest fete and pure food sale, given under the auspices of the Sisterhood, on Wednesday, October 11, afternoon and evening, manifested itself in a pleasing spectacle. Sheaves of wheat, sprigs of fern, the festal array of green with the golden glow of booths twined with the season's fruits and flowers, and the many-colored balloons which were suspended in clusters from the lights, made a pretty setting for the wide variety of offerings at the booths.

Those in charge of booths were Mrs. David Dunkelman, meats; Mrs. M. Cohen, fish; Mrs. Joseph Cohen and Mrs. Harry Marks, cakes; Mrs. S. M. Mehr and Mrs. Ira Levy, candies; Mrs. B. Harris, drinks; Mrs. Winters and Mrs. Leo Danson, fruits and vegetables; Mrs. I. Singer, salad; Mrs. H. Nusbaum, salad; and Mrs. J. Tarshis, salad; Mrs. W. Danenberg and Mrs. M. Cohen, canned fruits; Mrs. Jule Allen, wieners; Mrs. J. S. Cohen, Mrs. A. Levy, and Mrs. J. Wecksler, bread and noodles; Mrs. Lorrie Simonsky and Mrs. B. Laddon, ice cream. Tea was served at the Russian Inn, in charge of Mrs. F. Levinston and Mrs. A. Rosenthal. A substantial amount was added to the fund by the gipsy camp, where there was fortune-telling by Mrs. Joshua Smith. Other interesting features were the auction of coffee percolator, donated by Mr. and Mrs. L. Simon; ten dollar gold-piece, which sold for twenty-five, given by Mr. W. Danenberg; and auction of diamond ring, donated by Mr. I. Friedman. A large amount of food was bought, and then sent to the Jewish Children's Home and Preventorium. As a result of the food sale, the sum of $1,000 will go to the Sunday school building fund. Mrs. Arthur Cohen was general cashier, and Mrs. Gitson was in charge of auctioneering.

Sisterhood Religious School

In line with its intention to spread religious education amongst the Jewish children of this city, who are not privileged to receive such instruction, the Sisterhood of the Holy Blossom Congregation, through its religious school committee, of which Mrs. Harry Marks is convenor, and with the co-operation of the Y.M. and Y.W.H.A., will open a Sabbath school in the "Y" building, Brunswick and College. This school will be unique in that it will meet on Sabbath afternoon from 3.00 to 5.00 p.m. The committee has been exceptionally fortunate in securing the able services of Mr. Edmund Scheuer as principal of the school. Mr. Edmund Scheuer was organizer and founder of the first Jewish religious school in Canada. For over forty years he has been engaged in the work of religious education of our young. He is well known as a most able pedagogue and administrator. Mr. Scheuer has also had the distinction of training the most effective Jewish school teachers in Toronto. These teachers have assisted Mr. Scheuer for many years, and the conduct of the Zionist Sunday school will be under his able direction. Many of his former teachers will assist him in this new school, which will operate in a neighborhood where Christian missionaries are anxiously at work endeavoring to convert Jewish children to their religion. Parents of children living in the vicinity of the "Y" building are earnestly requested to send their children between the ages of seven and fifteen years to register in this school. Instruction will be given in Biblical and Jewish history, Jewish religion, ethics and Hebrew. Instruction will be free. All the expense will be born by the Sisterhood of the Holy Blossom Congregation.

BNAI ZION THEATER PERFORMANCE

The B'nai Zion Association will give a theater performance at the Standard Theater on November 8. The proceeds are to be used for the national fund. For further particulars, watch the CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW.

HERZL ZION CLUB

Prof. D. R. Keys, M.A., Ph.D., will inaugurate the Friday night lecture series to be delivered during the coming winter term at the Herzl Zion Club. On Friday, October 20, at 8 p.m., the subject will be, "World Problems of Our Day." The literary committee have secured several of the most eminent professors at the University for these lectures.

Those desiring invitations for the Sunday night lectures are requested to send their names in to the club, as the Friday night lectures are for members primarily.

COUNCIL OF JEWISH WOMEN

The first general meeting of the Council of Jewish Women for the year 1922-23, takes place at the Council House, 44 St. George Street, Thursday, October 19, at 2.30 p.m. As this is an important business meeting, a large attendance is imperative.

On Thursday, December 14, the Council is holding a "Children's Chanukah Carnival" at the Council House. This is to be a real happy time for the children, with Punch and Judy and kindred fun. All the children of Council members and their friends are invited as guests of the Council for one big, joyous frolic. So keep it in mind, and tell the children who will not let you forget.

The Council card party takes place in the Council House on November 2, at 2 p.m. There will be tables of bridge, whist, casino, eucher and lotto.

The creation of the bloc of the minorities in Poland in order to cooperate during the coming elections has met with incredulous surprise among Polish politicians. The bloc is confident of obtaining 80 seats in the Sejm, out of a total of 405, and 20 in the Senate, out of a total of 110. The Jews expect to obtain a third and believe that 30 Jewish representatives will enter the new Polish parliament.

ENGAGEMENTS

Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Keining, Ossington Avenue, announce the engagement of their youngest daughter, Sophia, to Mr. Samuel A. Pinkus, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Pinkus, of Toronto.

MARRIAGES

King—Kamins

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of Mrs. J. Kamins, when her daughter, Lena, was wedded to Mr. S. King, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. King. After the ceremony, they left for their honeymoon trip to Winnipeg, and from there to Lethbridge, Alta.

BORN

On October 10, at the Private Patients' Pavilion, Toronto General Hospital, to Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Pullan, a son.

OBITUARY

Rev. G. Ginsberg, who for the past eighteen years was a shochet in the city, and a member of McCaul Street Synagog, passed away Tuesday. The funeral took place from his home, 119 Palmerston Avenue. Rabbi J. Gordon officiated.

YOUNG HEBREW WOMEN'S CHORAL SOCIETY

The response to the call for membership for the Young Hebrew Women's Choral Society has been most gratifying. There are still several vacancies for a few more mezzo-sopranos and contraltos. Final hearings will be given all applicants each Tuesday of this month at the University Avenue Synagog, at 8 p.m., or by special appointment with the conductor, Mr. H. Riegelhaupt, College 2898F.

KAPPA DELTA KLUB

The Kappa Delta Klub will hold their annual dance at the Palais Royale on Wednesday, November 29, 1922.

THE HEBREW WESTON SANITARIUM CLUB

A general meeting will take place at the home of Mrs. J. Houzer, 12 Spadina Avenue, October 26, at 2.30 p.m. sharp. Election of officers will take place. Friends are welcome.

"Y" NEWS

The Y.M.H.A. branch Sabbath school of the Temple Sisterhood will open on Saturday afternoon, October 21, at three o'clock sharp, at the "Y" Building, 7 Brunswick Avenue. In connection with these classes, there will be the study of Hebrew and Jewish history for older groups. All are welcome.

Join on Saturday.

The educational committee of the "Y" are most anxious to afford the Jewish community of the city the opportunity of taking up a regular course of study for the season. The subjects of instruction are as follows: English literature and rhetoric, psychology, public speaking, economics and political science. You are urged to join these classes. The fee for same will be $1.00 per annum.

You may enroll any day except Saturday. The secretary, Miss Cohen, will be glad to give any information on the subject. Send in your application at once.

On Friday evening, November 3, the first of a series of "talks," on Jewish subjects by Jewish speakers, will take place at the "Y" Building at eight o'clock. All are welcome. Watch next week's issue for the name of the speaker.

Sunday evening, November 5, there will be a lecture given by one of Toronto's prominent speakers. This will also be the first of a series of lectures, to take place at the "Y" Building every alternate Sunday. The public are cordially invited. Speaker's name to be announced later.

The registration for the Inter-Club Debating League of the Y.M. and Y.W.H.A. is now open. Any club wishing to participate in the debates will kindly register before November 1, as the "Y" wishes to start this activity as soon as possible.

Gym classes for the intermediate and senior girls of the "Y" will be on Monday and Wednesday evenings, from 7.30 to 9 o'clock, beginning Monday evening, October 23.

On Thursday evening of this week, a senior council will be formed at the "Y," elected by and from the senior members; this council to have a president, vice-president, secretary, and chairmen of various committees, to administer and advise activities for the senior members.

Similarly, an intermediate council will be formed in the same manner and for the same purpose. The president and vice-president of the senior council and the president of the intermediates will be ex-officio members of the General Board of Directors, with power to vote. The council will consist of twenty-five members.

TO ALL CONGREGATIONS, SOCIETIES, CLUBS and other Organizations

The Canadian Jewish Review will issue early in December a number devoted to the Jewish organizations, benevolent, religious, educational and social, of Toronto.

For this number we ask the co-operation of every organization by appointing a committee of not more than two members of an organization, to furnish the Review with a short outline of its history, its aims, etc. There will be no charge for this.

We would suggest that each organization, through its committee, get in touch with the office of the Review immediately, either in person or by phone, to make the proper arrangements. All copy must be in the office of the Review by December 1st.

BALFOURS TROUNCE RAVINAS

The Y.M.H.A. Balfours, by virtue of their 16-1 victory over Ravinas, sent two thousand enthusiastic rugby fans home feeling highly jubilant. The game lacked the intense excitement of the previous Saturday, but, nevertheless was interesting at all times. The regulars played good rugby, and the so-called spares showed no reasons why they should not be classed as regulars. The half-line as usual did most of the offensive work.

The "Y" boys won their first three games, and in order to clinch the junior rugby championship of this city, have to defeat the strong St. George's team a week from to-morrow. Intense feeling is cropping up between these two teams, and in their next start the fans will have the opportunity of seeing the best junior rugby game in years.

The supporters are asked to be out in large numbers for to-morrow's game, as it will be played on Danforth's home grounds. Information as to where the game will be played can be had from the Y.M.H.A. or from Manager Herman Bennett.

JEWISH OLD FOLKS' HOME CONCERT

Much interest is being displayed in the concert which will be given in aid of the Jewish Old Folks' Home, at Loew's Winter Garden, Yonge Street, on Wednesday evening, November 1. A committee is arranging for special entertainers, which will include principals of Hambourg Conservatory, singers from the Toronto Conservatory, and pupils of Miss Sternberg's studio of dancing; Sid Grant, bright songs and sayings; Solomon Berkowitz, dramatic tenor (who is giving his services free), and Grafstein and company.

Tickets can be obtained from the executive members and at the office of the Jewish Old Folks' Home. Telephone College 8041 and tickets will be mailed.

THEATRE

LOEW'S YONGE STREET

Another part has been found for Miss Viola Dana, the little Metro star, which seemingly was especially constructed to provide her with an opportunity to display that reckless, devil-may-care vivaciousness in the portrayal of which she is surpassed by no actress.

"They Like 'Em Rough" is her newest vehicle and it is being shown during the week of October 23 at Loew's Yonge Street Theater, where Mabel Taliaferro, in person, will appear in "The Rose of Italy," at the head of a snappy vaudeville bill.

"They Like 'Em Rough" is a production for Metro, written and adapted by Rex Taylor and photographed by John Arnold.

It concerns one Katherine Trowbridge, a willful little minx who only needed to be told to do a thing to be consumed with a determination not to do it. "I'll go out and marry the first man I meet," she says. And she does. Whereupon complications pile up thick and fast and the result is a swift moving picture which cannot fail to please the most fastidious picture fan.

How the Jews Are Handicapped

Did you ever try to compute what it has cost our Israelitish brethren to keep two Sundays a week and four sets of holidays a year? This question was put by James Parton half a century ago. Then he goes on to say: Besides their own religious and national festivals they have been compelled, generally under ruinous penalties to abstain from business on those of the countries in which they have dwelt. Thus in the Catholic countries for several centuries they were obliged to be idle (1) fifty-two Sundays, (2) thirty holidays of obligation, (3) fifty-two Saturays or Sabbaths, (4) an average of twelve other holidays of their own; total, 146 days per annum, or about two days in every five. In Protestant countries the usual number of idle days, including their fifty-two Saturdays and twelve festivals and fasts, have been 110, or about two days in every six. In other words, the Jews in Catholic countries have been obliged by law and conscience to abstain from business nearly three days a week, and in Protestant countries a little more than two. Since Catholics became much less strict in the observance of Sundays and holidays the Jews suffer more inconvenience in Protestant than in Catholic countries. The rigor of the Scotch and Puritan Sunday is especially grievous to them, even to the present hour. This fact of the double set of holidays would alone have sufficed to exclude them from agriculture. A ripe harvest will not wait from Friday till Monday for any of our scruples. And two good planting days lost in a late, wet spring would often make the difference between a crop and no crop. Fancy a market gardener in strawberry time or a florist in May obliged to cease work half an hour before sunset Friday afternoon and unable to offer anything for sale until Monday morning. Even the thirty Catholic holidays of obligation placed the farmers of Catholic countries under a disadvantage that was obvious to all who lived near the line dividing a Catholic from a Protestant country. Voltaire, who lived for thirty years close to the frontier of France within two miles of Protestant Geneva, dwells upon this in many a passage of exquisite satire. If thirty extra holidays were a serious injury to French farmers, it will not be questioned that ninety-four made agriculture an impossible pursuit to Israelites.

Except where Jews lived together in large numbers, as in Poland and some parts of Germany, the same fatality of their lot sufficed to exclude them from most shops, counting-rooms and stores. Who could take an apprentice with the understanding that he was always to be absent on Saturdays? Who a clerk on the condition of not having him on the busiest day of the week? Even here in these free cities of America, where Jewish merchants and bankers are often obliged to employ Christian clerks, they labor under the disadvantage of having to pay salaries for 309 days' work per annum while getting only 257 days' attendance. In short, if you take the trouble to trace all the consequences of the conscientious adherence of our Israelitish brethren to their holy days, you will discover that, during many centuries of their dispersion among Christian nations, that adherence would have been enough of itself to confine their able men to the trade in money and jewels and their ordinary men to petty traffic and hard bargaining. Money at interest keeps no holy day. Like the tree of the Scotch laird in the novel, it grows while the owner sleeps. It earns revenue both while the lender prays in the synagog and while the borrower worships in the cathedral. On Good Friday as on the day of Atonement, through merry Christmas and merry Purim, in the days of Passover, the Fourth of July, the fifth of November, still it yields its increase. Hence strong Israelites usually deal in money; and as to the rank and file we must allow, if we would be just, that the trader who has to keep his shutters closed two or three days a week must as a general thing carry on business at small expense and make the most of every transaction.

But if a thousand years ago the Jews had reached the point of development which would have enabled them with a good conscience to give up their seventh day Sabbath and rest only upon ours, it would not have availed to give them a choice of occupation. In the days of superstition no Jew could hold or own land on endurable conditions in any country of Christendom. Nor could he belong to any guild of mechanics, and hence he could not be a mechanic or apprentice his son to a mechanic. He could not lawfully hire a Christian servant in some countries. He could not enter a university or a preparatory school in any country, and so the liberal professions were closed to him. He could not be an artist, even if any Christian prince would have bought pictures of him, because in the black ages there were only two kinds of pictures that yielded much revenue or renown—New Testament scenes and indecent pictures from the Greek and Roman poets. The former a Jew could not paint; the latter he would not, for the Jews have preserved through all vicissitudes a certain chastity of mind and taste which makes such tastes abhorrent to them. A good Jew knows better than most men the unutterable preciousness of an imprurient soul and an uncontaminated body.

CONCERNING THE JEW
By Mark Twain

The Egyptian, the Babylonian, the Persian, rose, filled the planet with sound and splendor, then faded to dream-stuff and passed away; the Greek and Roman followed and made a vast noise, and they are gone; other peoples have sprung up and held their torch high for a time, but it burned out and they sit in twilight now or have vanished. The Jew saw them, beat them all, and he is now what he always was, exhibiting no decadence, no infirmities of age, no weakening of his powers, no slowing of his energies, no dulling of his alert and aggressive mind. All things are mortal but the Jew; all other forces pass, but he remains. What is the secret of his immortality?

MONTREAL

Montrealers may obtain copies of the "Review" at the Features Publishing Co., 174 Mountain Street.

'Member that butcher strike of several weeks ago? A little bit of a thing as strikes go—but it may result in the formation of a Kehillah. A Kehillah, be it known, would be rather a good thing. Under the supervision of the Kehillah, local communal affairs would be adjusted ably and well. There has been much talk about the matter in many quarters of late, and perhaps the conference that is to meet after Succoth will put the Kehillah on an intelligent, business-like basis.

The Montreal Hebrew Orphans' Home, 500 Claremont Avenue, is to have a properly equipped gymnasium. The physical training of the boys and girls will be in the hands of Mr. Maurice Booth, who is well-known in amateur athletic circles, and was a former wrestling instructor at the Y.M.H.A. The children are to have a course including calisthenics, dumb-bell and wand work, volley ball, basketball, handball, punching the bag, boxing and wrestling.

The Maccabæan Circle will meet for the first time this year in the Oak Room of the Windsor Hotel, on Sunday, the 22nd. The speaker of the afternoon will be Dean Laing of the Faculty of Arts, who will take as his subject "The Roman and Hebrew Cultures." The executive committee of the Circle is made up of the following: Mr. Otto Klineberg, M.A., president; Mr. Samuel Mirsky, B. Sc., vice-president; Mr. Murray Rosenstein, secretary; Mr. Harry Badshaw, treasurer; Mr. J. Goldsmith, assistant secretary; Miss L. Jacobs, Miss A. Tarshis, Messrs. A. Benjamin and B. Cohen.

The first luncheon of the Temple Emanu El Sisterhood was held on Tuesday, October 10. Mrs. O. A. Kerner presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. Gustav Fischel, who is ill. Rabbi Merritt gave the opening prayer, and after reports were read by the various committees, introduced Canon Allen P. Shatford, the speaker of the day. Canon Shatford spoke on "The Position of Women." Miss Olga Guilanoff played the piano delightfully.

Awards of six music scholarships for McGill Conservatorium of Music for the 1922-23 sessions are announced, the scholarships in every case going to students from Montreal or outlying districts. The Macdonald Memorial Scholarship, value $175, was awarded to B. Schneider, of Montreal. The G. W. Lindsay Scholarship, value $175, was divided between Miss B. Hershorn and Miss L. Graydon.

Miss Eva Levinson was in charge of the "Safety First" booth arranged by the Montreal Council of Jewish Women to form part of the Health Exhibit held last week.

The Bialik Hebrew School at 2018 St. Lawrence Boulevard, will re-open with two new classes this month. The week commencing October 16 will be given up for the enrollment of new pupils.

The National Membership Campaign of the Jewish Immigrant Aid Society of Canada, the objective of which is to secure 10,000 members for the organization throughout the Dominion, is making fine progress. Various teams have been organized to canvass the city, and among those to volunteer were the following: Dr. J. Landé, H. Feigelson, A. Resler, Louis Fine, S. Sanderovitch, S. Rubenstein, M. Scherer, S. Frankel, A. Wolofsky and M. Bressler. Women's teams have been organized by the following: Mrs. G. Zudick, Mrs. S. Sanderovitch, Rose Lazar, Mary Lazar, Leah Levitsky, Rachel Ratner. Mr. B. Robinson is head of a team composed of Messrs. Lazarus, Philipps, Michael Gerber, Max Bernfeld and Adolf Gardner.

The officers of the campaign are as follows:

National Chairman—Lyon Cohen.

National Vice-Chairman—A. J. Freiman.

National Treasurer—A. Levin.

Honorary President—S. W. Jacobs, K.C., M.P.

President—Peter Bercovitch, K.C., M.L.A.

Chairman Eastern Division—Louis Cohen, Montreal.

Chairman Central Division—Rabbi Julius J. Siegel, Toronto.

Chairman Western Division—B. Sheps, Winnipeg.

National Executive Secretary—S. B. Haltvetcht, B.A.

An assembly was held at the Alfred Joyce school last week, at which the following children were among those to receive honors:

GRADE V.—Shula Gold, medal. Louis Levin, book (attendance.)

GRADE VII.—Jacob Kaufman, medal and scholarship. Goldie Shapiro, medal and scholarship.

GRADE VIII.—Dorothy Vosberg, Alfred Joyce Scholarship and Honor Card.

GRADE X.—Ida Tannenbaum, medal and scholarship. Ida Miller, books for Mathematics and English.

McGill University is losing its dental students, who are drifting to Toronto, as a result of the new matriculation conditions imposed by the College of Dental Surgeons of the Province of Quebec, Dr. A. W. Thornton, Dean of the Faculty of Dentistry, reported at the first corporation meeting of the session, held yesterday afternoon. The Dean calls for a remedy by which the great handicap which English-speaking students have to face in this province may be removed.

The report shows that students who have been attracted to McGill by its exceptional equipment and what is declared to be the finest hospital-clinic organization in America, are now drifting to Toronto, where the Royal College of Dental Surgeons is operated as a faculty of the University of Toronto. "We were unfortunate enough," Dr. Thornton states, "to lose several of our students who should have been registered here for the fourth year, but because of matriculation conditions in this province they were obliged to go to Toronto in order that after graduation they would have a license to practice in some part of Canada. Unless some change can be brought about in regard to matriculation necessary to obtain a license in the Province of Quebec, our experience of this year will be repeated in the future. Our students are forced to go to a university where, on completion of their studies, they will be in possession of a license which will enable them to enter upon their life work."

With the exception of Quebec, all provinces of Canada have their regulations consolidated under the Dominion Dental Council of Canada, and in each case junior matriculation admits to dental study.

McGill Dental School, with the finest equipment and buildings, has only 121 dental students registered this year, while Toronto has the largest class in Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Leavitt, Decarie Boulevard, announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Riva, to Mr. Jacob M. Kopstein, son of Mrs. I. Kopstein, of Winnipeg, Man.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lipnitz, of New York, announce the engagement of their daughter, Sophie, to Mr. Leo Livingstone, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Livingstone, 150 Tupper Street, Montreal.

Personalities

make a success, why there's something to him. Eddie, there's a gag a[illegible] Broadway that all of us Christians have a pet Jew, and you're mine."

By the time everybody had had their say about the popular comedian, Eddie—even voluble Eddie—was too overwhelmed to say very much himself when called upon. In characteristic fashion he made his pleasantries about the Friars and then said:

"I don't know what I have done in the past to deserve this honor, but I hope it will be different in the future."

When Will Rogers introduced Dean William Collier, he said he resented the usual characterization of Collier as a "light comedian." A light comedian, he said, got a few smiles and only a few laughs, and he preferred to call the Dean a "heavy comedian."

Collier then said:

"An honored guest only smiles twice at a Friars' dinner. The first smile comes when he walks in and gets his reception. The second is when his speech is over. He never eats any of the dinner, trying to think of his speech, and when he gets up to talk he forgets his speech and disappoints both himself and his audience.

"It will be hard to convince you that our guest's real name is Eddie Cantor, after seeing his caricature on the menu card. Our honored guest started out to make his living by working for the National Cloak and Suit Company, thereby proving that he intended to become either a manager, agent or a Friar. He lost his position because the boss lost so many stamps.

"His next move was appearing on the Bowery, and he was so successful that he was the inspiration for the 'hook.' He next bobbed up singing in a saloon at Coney Island, and during his spare moments was a plugger for a shooting gallery next door to the saloon. He spent most of his change practicing in the shooting gallery, not because he was fond of shooting, but to become used to handling firearms—knowing he would some day go with the Shuberts.

"He then determined to really go on the stage, feeling that he had every qualification, being an excellent singer, a good dancer and a very funny man, besides having a memory like a song-writer. So he hooked up with Max Hart, and when I say hooked up, I mean hooked up. Hart first booked him in Astoria and then in Staten Island, where he was canned twice in one day.

"We next find him with Bedini and Arthur, and then Hammerstein for a very limited engagement. Then he went with Gus Edwards' Kid Kabaret, feeling that with a child's show he might get by. He left this and went with Sammy Kessler to London and 'died.' After dying in many other places, we next find him one of a 'typical Morosco cast.' It was during this engagement that he conceived the idea of wearing glasses, having learned that it was a criminal offense to strike or throw things at anyone wearing glasses.

"Escaping unharmed from Morosco, he next appeared on the Ziegfeld Roof, his first rise in the profession. He remained with Ziegfeld until Ziegfeld got on to him, and then he joined the Shuberts. He got along very well until the Shuberts agreed to feature him, and the trouble started when he read the billing, which was as follows: '"Make It Snappy," with Eddie Cantor—BUT a great cast.'

"Now, if I may, I would like to read some telegrams:

"'Never mind the scenery and costumes, eat plenty and build up your constitution and comedy. We are with you as a unit.—Lee and Jake (Shuberts').

"'All kinds of success to-night, and no matter what you've heard I have always thought and spoke of you in the highest terms—seventy and thirty—Max Hart.'

"'Why shouldn't the Friars give a dinner to the best comedian, the most wonderful wit, the greatest comic singer, the handsomest actor in the world? Good luck, Eddie. Have a good time and bring home as much as you can. We need spoons most.—Your loving wife, Ida.

"'Go to it, kid. Hope you sock 'em for a goal and take twenty bonds. Hope dinner turns out elegant.—Chauncey Depew.'

We might add to the above story that it was not so long ago since the local Y.M.H.A. sent Cantor to a free fresh air camp, together with other poor East Side boys. That favor he remembered in his years of fame, and last year he revisited the camp (Surprise Lake Camp) and left a present of a thousand dollars.

A fine representative of the stage and us is Eddie Cantor.

for by Stein's five-piece orchestra. The evening was a most sociable one, due to Mr. Norman Levin's novel idea of introducing everybody to everybody else.

The Montefiore Club will hold their first informal dance of the season on November 3, at the Royal Alexandra Hotel.

Winnipeg has never had a Succoth like this year. Rabbi Samuel arranged for a supply of esrogim and lulovim from Palestine, and placed a set in every home of his congregation, together with a leaflet containing instructions and the blessings.

The Shaarey Zedek Synagog afforded an unique spectacle on Sunday, the second day. The attendance was the largest ever seen, and during Hallel there was a veritable forest of palms. The Hashonah procession was impressive, the Synagog being completely encircled with the lulovim. Rabbi Samuel spoke on the symbolism of the ceremony. No charge was made for the esrogim, the expenses being defrayed by voluntary contributions. Whatever surplus will result will be handed over to the National Fund. Considerable interest was aroused by the beauty and perfection of the esrogim. It is generally understood that the Palestine esrog is of an inferior quality, but nothing could have excelled those received in Winnipeg. In the homes the children have been enthusiastically "benching esrog," and the experiment has been a brilliant success. The Secretary of Trade and Industry of the Palestine Zionist Executive has written Rabbi Samuel promising to arrange a special packing and export department for esrogim, lulovim and hadassim in time for next year, so that congregations desiging to follow Winnipeg's example may obtain supplies.

At a recent meeting of Winnipeg Lodge No. 650, I.O.B.B., Rabbi Samuel was elected president, and Dr. Chas. Zilz a trustee.

The summer camp at Winnipeg Beach operated by the I.O.B.B., provided a holiday for five hundred and fifty-eight boys and girls. Six mothers with fourteen babies in need of a rest, were accommodated at the camp.

The Girls' Auxiliary of the Jewish Orphanage held their first monthly social evening of the season at the Home, 123 Matheson Avenue, on Sunday evening, October 8. A large attendance marked the enthusiasm with which the resuming of these monthly socials was greeted, and it seems evident that these socials will be even more popular than they have been in past seasons. A splendid six-piece orchestra supplied an attractive program of dances. Refreshments were served during the evening, under the convenorship of Miss Minnie Kert. Miss Zoe Isaacs had charge of the music, while the collections were taken care of by Miss Ruby Goldstine and Miss Thelma Rackow.

To inaugurate the New Year of the Shaarey Zedek Sisterhood, a silver tea was held at the home of the president, Mrs. Max Heppner. There was a large gathering present.

A booklet dedicated to the Sisterhood, containing prayers and meditations for Yiskor and Yahrzeit days, was distributed to the Congregation on Yom Kippur.

The worshippers have been entertained in the Congregational Succah by the Sisterhood. The Sisterhood also provided a dozen sets of machsorim for the provincial penitentiary.

OTTAWA

Mrs. Goldenthal, of New York, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Adolph Rosenthal, has returned to her home.

At the annual meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Perley Home for Incurables, held on October 9, a standing vote of thanks was passed to the retiring president, Mrs. A. J. Freiman, in appreciation of the good work she accomplished during her term of office. Upon a motion of Mrs. W. W. Wylie, Mrs. Freiman was made a life member of the auxiliary.

Miss Mildred Gordon, who has been the guest of the Misses Benewick, has returned to her home in Montreal.

It has come as welcome news to Jewish music-lovers of Ottawa that Mrs. A. Pinco has opened a studio at her residence, 310 Cooper Street, where she will give pianoforte and singing lessons. Mrs. Pinco in the past has ever been ready to sing or train singers for any Jewish philanthropic or charitable undertaking; indeed there is still philanthropy in Mrs. Pinco's decision to take pupils, for she does not mean to be a mere ordinary music-teacher; it is her ambition and intention as soon as she has a sufficient number of pupils interested and advanced enough, to form a Jewish choral society.

Mrs. Pinco, who came to this country from Ireland, studied music abroad, and is a pupil of the late Madame Jeannie Quinton-Ross. Those who know Mrs. Pinco, and how thoroughly she does things, realize that they cannot do better than trust their musical education to her.

Mr. Isidore Tolzess, of Montreal, formerly of Ottawa, spent last week in town.

Mr. Harry Levine, of Toronto, is staying at the Russell House.

Mrs. Alan Bronfman, of Winnipeg (formerly Miss Lucy Bilsky, of Ottawa), is in town, staying with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. Bilsky.

Mrs. A. J. Freiman, who is a patient at the Ross Memorial Pavilion of the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, is progressing favorably.

Mrs. A. Rosenthal, Sr., and Miss Elsa Rosenthal, left last Thursday to spend a couple of weeks in New York.

Mr. Bert Gordon was appointed chairman, and Mr. Dave Slover, secretary (provisionally) of the Ottawa Branch of the Workers' Zionist Organization of Canada, at a recent meeting. A public meeting will be held shortly at which a musical and literary program will be rendered.

Mr. Lou Broudy, of Toronto, is spending a few days in Ottawa.

Mrs. A. W. Jacobs and little daughter, of Montreal, who spent the summer at
